Dear all,

Every issue of our catalogue is an exceptional event for me. I do not know exactly how many people read my introductions but I know that there are many who do and therefore I am very pleased. Thank you for a warm welcome to our holiday ideas. Even the most exclusive travel book would not make sense without you.

It is the thirteenth year of our business activity. It should be a special year if to believe in superstitions. And it really is, because we branched out and enlarged our office. It is all thanks to you and for you, lovers of travelling with style. Our office with a special VIP section is the capstone of our activity. We have created such conditions so that everybody who visits us feels as if they already started their luxury holiday.

What do you gain when booking in our travel agency?

First of all, we bring you the good prices. Every day we check booking.com and hotels' websites so that we can present competitive offers. When you book your holiday in a polish travel agency you also support domestic companies. In this way you contribute to maintaining jobs for young and ambitious people. Our team is built of enthusiasts who resigned from their plans to work abroad more than once. Imagine that every single zloty spent in our country will pay off in your own business and next generations will understand that it is worth investing in homeland.

What new tourist destinations are worth visiting?

As usual we have many novelties in our offer including journeys to Alaska, cruises along the Amazon, luxury excursions to the Gobi Desert in Mongolia, living in a village together with Papuan people or cruises on the Duero in Portugal. For me the most incredible destinations are Italian islands, the French Alps, Mexican haciendas and islands on the Indian Ocean, perhaps crisscrossed and visited many times but why not discover them once again?

Leave nothing but footprints

Travelling should be both pleasurable and conscious. It is not just carefree spending money and leaving tones of rubbish. We engage actively in different charity actions. In the majority of hotels promoted by us in the Third World guests will have the opportunity to contribute to social actions such as sponsoring building roads and houses for the poorest families or improving educational conditions in Asian and African villages. I am pleased that all hotels in Africa with which we cooperate are engaged in supporting local communities and our travellers take part in charity projects that they sometimes even do not realize.

Botswana

It has been a few weeks since we came back, but we are still reminiscing about our holiday. You were right when you said that we would find the true face of Africa there. I enjoyed night and walking safaris. My wife's favourite attraction was the mokoro trip in the Okavango Delta. Every day at sunset we had a meal in the bush. Of course, the service was outstanding – the people were very friendly and professional.

The Residence, Mauritius

We really enjoyed our journey to Mauritius! The hotel was great, just a few steps from the beach gently descending to the sea. The weather was nice and food was exquisite, especially tuna served in every possible way. There was a good selection of wines at reasonable prices, but we chose the all-inclusive option and it was the best choice we could make. The trips were superb. We recommend the submarine voyage, the catamaran cruise and rum tasting above all.

Thailand and Bali

Wanting to experience an active, men's adventure, once again we decided to rely on the expertise of Luxury Travel professionals. We chose Thailand and Bali, so it was quite a challenge to organise a mix of the highest-quality stay with unique attractions for the masses. We could see completely different Thailand, wild, but luxurious at the same time. In Bali, on the other hand, while crossing the jungle and climbing the highest volcano called Mount Agung, we realized what a real challenge looked like. It was a true adventure seasoned with sweat and champagne!

Oman

I would like to thank Mr. Krzysztof for organising our journey to Oman. The connection between Oman and Dubai was perfect. Six Senses Zighy Bay astonishes with its uniqueness and highest-quality service. I especially recommend Paragliding Arrival – parachute jumps over Zighy Bay. It makes a real impression! We spent the last night before our flight to Poland at One & Only Royal Mirage. We returned home with a multitude of photos and unforgettable experiences :)

Honeymoon – Dubai & Maldives

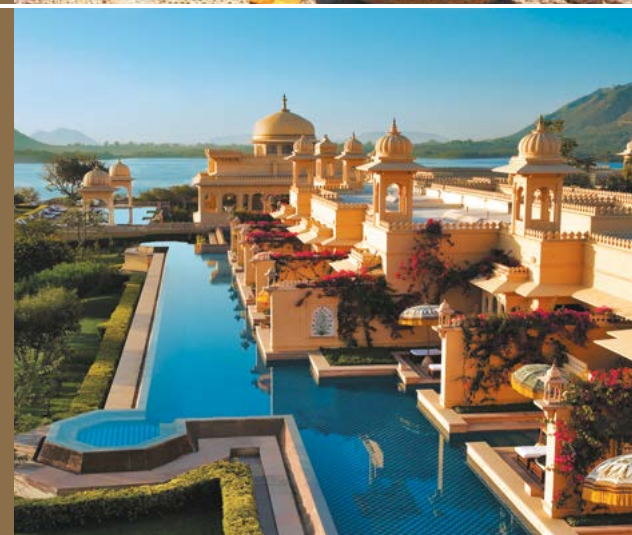

We would like to thank you for arranging such a wonderful honeymoon. Maldives enchanted us in every way. The reef situated nearby Hideaway Beach Resort was magnificent. Dubai was a perfect getaway after 10 days spent in the paradise. We had so many attractions that we could get to know this amazing place well. We had a lot of fun during a desert safari and in one of the best waterparks in the world. Once again we want to thank you for the outstanding organisation of such an important to us journey. You are the best at tailor-made holiday!

M.R. & T.R.

Travelling across India

In the beginning we were a bit sceptical to organise our journey with a 'luxury' travel agency. We almost went to another agency as they had offered a cheaper trip. We often travel, we prefer adventure over luxury and we do not like overpaying. After our journey to India we have to admit that your help was invaluable. Our guides, although they were sometimes tired after hundreds of kilometres we had covered together, were impeccable and always on time. The hotels where we stayed were outstanding. Needless to say, I hold you and your travel agency in high esteem!

It's Mexico, Baby!

Yucatan adventure with tequila in hand.

The animated series 'The Mysterious Cities of Gold' gained a large audience in Poland at the end of the 90's and I used to watch it with bursting excitement. I did not expect that travelling would become my passion and that I would have the chance to impersonate the show's main character, Esteban, who flies on a golden condor in search of the Cities of Gold. My condor, Boeing 767, was not made of gold, sadly, but it accomplished its mission successfully when it got me from Frankfurt straight to Cancun.

My first stop – the Riviera Maya. Where else to celebrate a boisterous arrival if not in the crazy Hard Rock Hotel? The hotel has attracted the enthusiasts of loud music and dancing by the swimming pool for many years. It was great to see people enjoying every single moment spent together in a restaurant, theatre, bar, on a sports field, at the beach or in a night club. Hard Rock is a full package. After checking-in it was high time to say hello to Mexico in local style. 'Tequila time!' I thought and the rest of my evening went by while watching animations, listening to DJ music and soaking my feet rhythmically in the pool together with other guests. In the hotel's minibar there are 4 bottles of strong liquors waiting for each guest so the party can last till the crack of dawn. Such a rich all-inclusive offer can be envied by many hotels.

The next day I went to the heart of the Riviera Maya - to Playa Del Carmen. It is considered the cradle of most luxurious hotels situated just steps from a snow-white beach. Mayakoba Resorts including Rosewood, Banyan Tree and Fairmont, take the lead. These hotels are located in a landscape garden which scenery is dominated by mangrove forests inhabited by hundreds species of birds, mammals and, of course, iguanas. Dense bush is interspersed with paths ideal for a bike ride or jogging and river canals where boats transporting guests to the beach operate. The river teems with turtles and fish. During my cruise I got to know that the hotel's mascot is a young crocodile called Sophie which often basks in the sun next to the golf course. 'Such things can happen only in Mexico,' I commented on this news swallowing saliva slowly and continued my careful observation of the crystal clear water surrounding my boat.

After three days spent on the 11-kilometre Riviera Maya I was leaving paradise in search of Maya temples in land with sadness in my eyes, but eager to experience the next Mexican adventures.

Built in the 17th century Hacienda Uayamon was the starting point of my quest. Word 'uayamon' in Mayan language literally means 'let's start'. It is great accommodation close to Edzna - discovered in the 20th century and one of the oldest Mayan cities dating back to the 4th century BC.

Haciendas cannot be omitted when talking about Yucatan. They are rural mansions which belonged to European conquistadors in the past and recently they have been restored and converted into luxury hotels and restaurants. Haciendas were my haven during the following week. Uayamon, Temozon and Santa Rosa, belonging to the Luxury Collection, are real jewels. Their rooms were remade from their former hosts' bedrooms, guest rooms, spaces for servants and slaves as well as hospital areas, chapels and stables. Their walls hide turbulent stories, so they provide unforgettable experiences. It is a unique place far from civilization. What is more, the unrepeatability of the atmosphere of the Yucatan is enhanced by the sounds of fauna and flora waking up in the morning and the sight of ubiquitous iguanas.

Of course, any expectations of excellent service and waiters with refined manners and fluent English go in vain, but this is not the point. The Mayan people who work in haciendas are members of local communities and they are in seventh heaven if they find any job. They have learnt much, but they are not modern, lost somewhere between epochs and they make up for their flaws with a warm smile and a low bow. I had ordered tea, but I got a kettle with water and sugar – somebody had forgotten about the tea itself. It did not matter, though. Tea is not like iguanas. All is not lost that is delayed. After all, I had tequila to satisfy my thirst.

The essence of my journey was getting to know the Mayan world through discovering the ruins of cities and temples as well as their art and history. In Santa Rosa I myself met Mayan descendants. They did not look like Mexicans from the city and I suddenly realised that there are race differences. The Mayan people have more slanted eyes and more prominent cheekbones and these features are typical of Indians. It turned out that they have preserved their distinctive language and they practice their own craft.

Every day after sightseeing we would have a rest in private haciendas. All over the place there was nobody besides the service and buildings were exclusively at our disposal. 'Enormous swimming pool, hand-painted interiors, columns and ornaments – everything belongs to me today,' I thought to myself. An egoistic gleam appeared in my eyes. Before I wore my swimming trunks the service had treated me with tequila and fruit. 'Nothing can beat Mexican hospitality, salud!'

In the private mansions there were numerous attractions waiting for me and cenotes were one of them. They are deep water pits carved in calcareous rocks. On the peninsula there are neither rivers nor lakes so the rainwater hollowed underground or open pit caves connected with aquifer resources. A jump to shimmering ink-like water deep for 50 metres ahead of me. Adrenaline goes through the roof. 3... 2... 1... 'I'm alive!' I made it! It was amazing! If I had been within range, I would have boasted about it to the whole world. 'Waiter!'

The land of the Maya started to enrapture me, more and more every day. Dinners under a big Ceiba tree, lunch in the ruins of an old chapel, spa treatments in hidden caves, a cruise among pink flamingos, mezcal vodka sampling on enormous agave plantations – different attractions daily. Even margaritas drunk in the evening tasted differently than in Poland – was it tequila or the breath-taking panoramic view of the old city from the roof of Puerta Campeche? The days started to pass quickly and I did not want to leave at all.

The final point of my journey was a trip to Chichén Itzá. It had been mentioned since the very beginning and supposed to be the culmination of sensations. Chichén Itzá is a Maya city from the 4-6th century where sacrifices from men were immolated in deep cenotes. The sight was announced one of the New7Wonders of the World. I was about to see a multimedia show presented in the ruins of a temple with a sculpture of a giant snake. In the late evening, we climbed to the top in the part of the ancient city which is normally closed for visitors. Suddenly, gentle sounds started coming from the ruins. We held our breaths and put our mobiles aside. A private concert by a Mayan flautist performed at sunset at the top of the temple. Could a better scenery be even imagined? This melody took me back in time. A mystic aura was omnipresent. We did not move until dawn. 'Mission accomplished,' I smiled with pride. I finally discovered the Mysterious Cities of Gold.

In Search of Paradise – the Philippines

Asia is not the same everywhere... If you have travelled to Thailand for the seventh time, you know all its secrets and wonders. Just like seven years ago, there still is the same stall with counterfeits at the night market, the same outfits and rules in the night clubs. Well, the only difference is that girls who come to these clubs are much younger. In order to experience something completely different I decided to visit another Asian country – the Philippines. It consists of over 7 thousand islands, whereas about one thousand is inhabited, so everybody can find their own place there.

Someone who has visited Thailand, Laos, Myanmar (Burma), Cambodia, or Vietnam and is travelling to the Philippines thinking that it is the same everywhere, will be astonished. The Philippines is the only catholic country in Asia and, next surprise, the third English-speaking country in the world in terms of population. There are no communication problems even in the most remote from the capital places, what cannot be said about other Asian countries. All the countries mentioned by me for sure have something in common – I am the tallest person everywhere I go :)

I started my journey across the Philippines in Manila, the country's capital. Flights with Emirates from Poland to Manila, with a change in Dubai, take about 18 hours and the prices start at 3 thousand zlotys in economy class.

The first encounter with Manila can overwhelm you. Crowds of people, abundance of colours and sounds, total chaos, dirt, slums, odour, shopping centres one next to another, business-like Makati, poor and dangerous Quiapo. You start wondering if it is Manila for sure, once called the 'Pearl of the Orient'. But this is the case with the Philippines – nothing is as it seems at first glance.

During World War II the capital of the Philippines, similarly to Warsaw, was almost completely razed to the ground and many famous sights were destroyed. Today's Manila is all about churches, gardens, modern business centres and the remains of defensive walls. Moving around the capital is very bothersome due to heavy traffic and traffic jams.

Slums, Manila

Andrzej Tkaczow

Sightseeing should be spread out over time because getting to one place from another takes a lot of time. Manila is home to one of the biggest slums in the world and I decided to visit this place. My guide was a local so my trip was very interesting and perfectly safe. Dirty children running unattended along a filthy narrow street, litter, dogs and cats, rats, clothes hanging in dusty windows, tiny stalls with sweets, lollipops and crisps. I realized that even in such a place people can be cheerful. Now I know why the Philippines are one of the happiest people in the world.

My journeys cannot lack night life. I was pretty shocked when I discovered that most of the beautiful girls in night clubs and bars are in fact male. Clubs, discos, pubs, restaurants – everybody finds there something to suit their fancy. The Philippines are cheerful and full of life, no matter how thick or thin their wallets are. Their national sport is... karaoke. Literally, everywhere you go there is a karaoke set and everyone sings. They are very talented and listening to them is pure pleasure. During a night journey I got to know that Soup No. 5 made from bull's testes is a real delicacy and an aphrodisiac at the same time. Travelling broadens one's horizons.

For someone, who comes to the Philippines for the first time, the next must-see highlight is Bohol Island. People say that Bohol is the Philippines in a nutshell. You can find anything here: culture, history, beautiful beaches, amazing underwater wildlife, little islets, wild animals, tiny rice terraces, dance, hospitality, typical Filipino dishes. Chocolate Hills are a famous tourist attraction. Included in the UNESCO World Heritage List, without a doubt they belong to the most characteristic and unique landscapes on Earth, nowhere else one can see anything similar. There are plenty of fascinating legends and inspiring stories connected with their formation. More than 1700 cone-shaped mounds are covered in grass that turns brown during the dry season, hence the name.

The Chocolate Hills

Bohol is known for its floating restaurants on the Loboc River. They are boats remade into restaurants and filled with romantic tables and local music. Decorated in Filipino style, their look beats everything. You set off on an amazing cruise to the middle of the jungle, where women with tiny guitars and dynamic bamboo dancing shows await you. Everything happens in the scenery where the famous movie titled 'Apocalypse Now' was filmed.

After a 2-hour cruise by ferry from Bohol we are on Cebu Island with the oldest city on the Philippines of the same name. The island did not delight me and I wonder why Emirates have created a direct link recently. Cebu is a paradise for divers and it is known for a factory producing guitars recognized world-wide. All music stars own hand-made instruments manufactured here. The best hotel on the island is Shangri La's Mactan Resort & Spa. It has a small beach and is not particularly interesting. Cebu lacks luxury hotels.

Boracay, on the other hand, is the foyer to luxury. This small island with beautiful beaches, which lead in all rankings, is 7 kilometres long and 1 kilometre wide. It has an excellent touristic infrastructure and fantastic conditions to sunbathe, swim, dive, snorkel, windsurf and take up other water sports.

The best hotel on Boracay is Shangri La's Boracay Resort & Spa. It is spread over a big area with beautiful gardens and a private white-sand beach. It offers many possible options of accommodation from standard rooms to private villas at the top of the hill with outstanding sea views.

The island is full of hustle and bustle and there are a lot of tourists all year round. This is why Shangri La's is the only place far from this vibrant atmosphere where you can rest on a private beach and then have some fun in the evening.

Feeding fish in Amanpulo

Swimming pool in Amanpulo

Beach in Amanpulo

On my way to paradise... When we imagine paradise, we all have different ideas of such a place. For me the paradise was found in Amanpulo resort belonging to AMAN - one of the most luxurious chains in the hotel industry. It is situated in the north part of Palawan province on a private island called Pamalican.

The flight by a private light aircraft, belonging to the hotel, from Manila to the resort takes one hour. There are 40 villas with up to 4 bedrooms available for the guests. It is an exclusive place, one of its kind, for people who appreciate privacy and luxurious leisure. It is here where the most famous stars relaxed including Michael Jackson, Diana Ross, Mariah Carey, Bill Gates, Tom Cruise, Beyonce and Robert De Niro.

Amanpulo is a private enclave with top-class services. Each guest has a personal butler and all the meals including breakfast are a la carte. The stay can be varied by taking up water sports or enjoying different attractions spread on the island. The walk around Pamalican took me a little more than an hour and the only company I had were little crabs running over sand resembling flour.

Amanpulo Resort was the icing on the cake of my journey to this remote and very interesting country. The citizens of the Philippines captivated me with their hospitality and spontaneity. I hope I will visit them once again. However, if it never happens, at least I will do my best to showcase the beauty of this tropical paradise to people who travel with Luxury Travel.
